

June 16, 2014

(Navid Baraty / Gothamist)

Tomahawk Steak for two at Michael Jordan's The Steak House (Navid Baraty/Gothamist)

Michael Jordan's The Steak House: Chances are slim you'll spot His Airness devouring a Tomahawk on your visit, but you'll be too distracted peering down at the busy ants making their way through the Main Concourse below or gazing up at the constellations on the ceiling to even notice. On the menu you'll find traditional steakhouse fare like Shrimp Cocktail ($18), a burger ($23) and of course large hunks of meat, including a Boneless Rib Eye ($41), a Marinated Skirt Steak ($30) and the enormous Porterhouse for Two ($89). In addition to the restaurant, the balcony bar offers a more casual spot to sip and sup, and the small wine alcove sets the scene for tastings and small parties throughout the year.